

Miss Dorothy E. Rice

July 18, 1939 - September 12, 2023

Early morning, September 12, 2023, perhaps with the rising of the sun, Dorothy Elizabeth Rice swooped off with her angels to an ultimate family reunion with our beloved parents and superlative six siblings. She passed away peacefully in her sleep when her generous loving heart gave out. She was born in North Adams on July 18, 1939, a daughter of the late Hart and Catherine (Murphy) Rice. Dot had an idyllic childhood growing up with her ten siblings on Peace Valley Farm in Williamstown. Attending local schools, she graduated from the former Williamstown High School in 1957, where she was actively involved in band, chorus, cheerleading, student council, class offices, etc. She went on to the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, the only campus then, earning her bachelor's degree in nursing in 1962. Dot then went to New York City for the next 30 years, applying her expertise and TLC, first at Bellevue Hospital and then at Columbia University Medical Center. There she earned her master's in nursing while working with heart research, specializing in cardiovectorology. Her unit trained doctors from all over the world in cutting edge cardiology techniques. Later, she returned to Adams to help her mother cope with her failing eyesight until her passing in 1996. Next, she worked at the Adams Free Library from August 1999 to August 2011. She was a communicant of the Parish of St. John Paul II, Adams, first at the former St. Thomas Aquinas Church, and later at Notre Dame des Sept Douleurs Church for many years. Sometimes singing in the choir, she had a lovely voice and was excellent at harmonizing. Dot especially appreciated her vast loving family of ten siblings, a plethora of adoring nieces and nephews, great nieces and great nephews, brothers and sisters-in-law, and all their extended families. She also loved playing Scrabble, being out in nature, weeding, raking leaves, shoveling snow, and spending time with her close friends.

She had a compassionate heart for the less fortunate and contributed generously to many organizations and charities. Plus, taking after our saintly mom, Dot was our prayer warrior, constantly praying for all our families, friends, and the whole world.

Certainly we'll all mourn her passing, but focus on her being free of her debilitated body, rapturously joyous in Heaven's eternal bliss. Then we can honor her life-well-lived by being kind, generous, and loving, and by letting our heartlights shine to brighten up our weary world, so in need of special, spiritual people, such as Dot was.

Dot is survived by her two sisters, Nancy Bassi of Adams and Virginia Farmer of Casselberry, FL, and by her two brothers, Thomas Rice of Tempe, AZ and William Rice of Lee.

Besides her phenomenal parents, she was predeceased by her two brothers, Hart Rice, Jr. and John Rice, as well as her four sisters, Mary Baker, Patricia Austin, Margaret Bowes and Kathleen Rogers.

“ Dotty was the epitome of a Christian cheerleader where ever she was ~~ bringing joy and positive thoughts to everyone and about everyone. She was not interested in where you'd been or where you were going or how you looked. She just knew you were one of God's children and that she would be praying for you. She was the epitome of being selfless when she was the one needing help. I often went on walks with her at our little 1961B class reunions and could hear the pain underneath that little giggle. Our last walk she had a hard time keeping up with her usual pace but of course in Dotty style just kept struggling forward ignoring herself. I never met her sister, Nancy, but Dotty always lauded her strength and support in her life. Thanks Nancy for being there in the tough times and I know there were many!! Although Dotty never married, she knew the value of love and family. She was an earthy angel for sure.

Relax, Dotty, you're home.
