“ Hello Cathy and Christine,

I just learned of your mother's passing and I want to extend my condolences. I know you did everything in your power to make her last years comfortable and meaningful. I had a nice visit with Elaine at her house several years ago following the passing of your father, and I'm glad we spent this time together to catch up a little on our families. It's strange how life separates relatives so much these days, but I guess that's just the way it goes. I haven't seen either of you in years but I do occasionally think about you and how your lives might be going.

I want to wish you and your families the best going forward, and especially now during this difficult time.
