“ River Hill Pottery was my first experience with North Adams and the Eclipse Mill. How lucky for me. As a fellow potter considering a loft in the building, they offered that I could work in their studio until I figured things out. We had just met. I moved in. I am very grateful for the generosity of their trust. Reading all the tributes tells me he shared that generosity with many. Phil we all will miss you !!

“ We meet Phil and Gail within the first week of our moving to North Adams. They welcomed us with open arms and made us feel friends they had known for years. We soon found that anything Phil and Gail sure involved with was something we wanted to be a part of also. Everything Phil worked on, became involved with became a fun amazing project to be a part of. He was so fun, professional, creative, talented and just a joy be to around. It was wicked awesome to get to be a part of the Faerie Festival with him and Gail. One of my favorite times was co-curating the “I’ll Drink to That” ceramic mug show at the Eclipse Gallery with Phil and Gail. Phil was someone you quickly felt close to and looked forward to spending time with from, Chinese dinners, carving pumpkins, art and creative projects to just a good old talk. We have have been enriched by his being of a part of our lives. All our love goes to Gail and their family.

“ For me, Phil and Gail were one word strung together as a dynamic duo, a force of love, a team of two. I love them both. I always will. Phil was a mensch, a prince among men, an artist, artisan, community activist, husband, father, grandfather, and friend. He believed in art and people and worked with joy to create the gloriously multi-colored and magical bridge that brought the Arts and folks together. Phil and Gail together represented through their talent, kindness, and energy the best qualities of humanity. My heart goes out to my friend, Gail, in love and empathy. Every day since hearing of Phil's death, I have offered up my experience of seeing the beauty of flowers and the brightness of the sun to a celebration of his life. My words of comfort are simple ones. Love endures all things, even death, and lives on in the hearts and minds of those who loved him. ~ Deirdre

“ Phil & I were classmates at Eastlake North & hung with Joe Mauser & Augie Landsman

I believe we were in band together if memory serves correctly.

Also Phil & my brother Nelson graduated from KCAI just a couple years apart.

Those were fun times my friend may you rest in peace.

“ I took a wonderful pottery workshop with Phil & Gail several years ago. Phil was a fun, enthusiastic and giving man who clearly adored his wife, Gail. Together, they were an inspiration to so many. He will be missed greatly in the pottery community and so many other communities in which he was involved and giving. My thoughts and prayers are with Gail and all of his family today and in the days, weeks and months to come.
