“ I have wonderful memories of these great conversations Steven and I had when he'd come into my old bookstore (which he did a lot!). He'd wander around the shelves a long while, then come to the counter with a stack of books - and we'd talk about everything, what he was reading, about the world, or about how the world did (or didn't) work. We kept having those interesting chats when I saw him from time to time around town. I will miss his big heart, brain, and smile.

“ His brother Ron was one of my husbands good friends and I remember Steve as a very smart guy but also a very sweet guy. Not to many of those around. Dave and Betty Hamer
